ince died in great arony. The 1-w and Isle of Wight have as yet brought forward no senatorial candidate, this personage will most likely be chosen from the political timber of South ampton. The candidates there prominently mentioned in connection with the nomination are Hon. J. D. Pretlow, delegate to the House in the last General Assembly; Mr. William Shands, County Chairman; Mr. A. M. Brawnley and P. S. Thomas, Esq. For the House in Southampton Dr. Ben. R. Bryant and Messrs. J. C. Parker and J. S. Musgrave are spoken of the following the stand for re-election. Other gentlemen talked of are Major C. W. Wright and Ms. S. P. Vandersliee, of Suffolk, and Messrs. L. A. Dean, Representative Williamson and J. D. Carbell, of the county.

Colonel R. E. Boykin, in Isle of Wight is a candidate for re-election to the House, preferring to return there where he is already recognized as an influential member, rather than enter the senatorial contest, where he could be very much in the race. He will probably have no opposition.

Last sight's concert for the benefit of a memorial to the Confederate dead was attended by a good sized audience, conspicuous among which were many silver handed veterans, who enjoyed the entertainment with a zest. Appreciation of the music, vocal and instrumental, was evidenced by generous applause, as each of the ten numbers was encored with determination. Some of the productions were of a rare order and inken altogether it is seldom that a coterie of amateurs excels in merit last evening's musicale. Vocal solos by Capt. Prank Cunningham of Richmond; Misses Bessie Williams and Annie Hume, of Norfolk and Portsmouth, respectively, and Misses Florence Harvey and Mattle Boswell, of Suffolk, were greatly enjoyed, as were the violins of the Misses Quimby and a plano solo by Miss Georgia Crumin, of Suffolk several bouquets were gracefully acknowledged by their recipients. A fit-ling finale was Capt. Cunningham's last response to an encore, "Way Down Upon the Suwance River," the rendition of which reached every heart.

ELECTRIC CARS.

An Experiment Proves That They Will

Electricity as a motive power and its practical use in handling freight on rail-roads have been tested on the Nantasket beach electric system of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railway. The experiments were made with ed with Quincy granite and were witnessed by a large number of the rail-road officials, who regarded the tests as satisfactory and indicative of a revolution in railroad traffic within a few years.

Two motor car No. 2503 was first tested with a load of nine cars with a combined weight of 302 tons. As this load was too heavy the cars were dropped off one at a time until only five re-mained, which were drawn fairly well. Then the four motor car No. 2500 was ballasted with 5,000 pounds of iron and attached to seven loaded cars weighing 234 tens. It drew the load easily, and there seemed to be no great effort when the load was increased to eight cars and 273 tons and afterward to nine cars and 303 tons. Then the motor car ballast was increased to five tons, and the car easily pulled ten carloads of freight weighing 335 tons. Twelve carloads weighing 400 tons were also handled without difficulty, but with 14 cars weighing 470 tons the train moved slow-ly, as it was exerting a power equal to that of a 42 ton locomotive. The two motor cars were then coupled together and attached to various loads up to 30 cars, weighing 954 tons, which were successfully hauled. While making this test something gave out on the four mo-tor car, and the less powerful car han-dled the entire load. Then the two mo-tor car was attached to six cars weighing 215 tons and carried them to the Nantasket yard.

Tests were also made with the open motor cars, one of which, with a single motor, easily hauled a carload weighing 39 tons to the power station and return, subsequently hauling two cars of 40 tons each. At the conclusion of the freight power tests the gentlemen present were treated to an exciting exhibi-tion of the speed of electric cars. An open car was run down to Pemberton at a speed of 58 miles an hour. On the re-turn the car was sent spinning with a velocity of 72 miles an hour. President Clark of the New Haven railroad ex-pressed himself as much pleased with the results of the tests. He said that electric cars at frequent intervals can haul freight cheaper and better than it can be done with steam. He aso inti-mated that the railroad of which he is president will soon adopt a system of suburban electric traffic, and be thought the people of the South Shore will be given an opportunity, within two years, of riding to Boston on electric cars. -

Chivalry For Women.

Those who see boys and girls "jolly-ing," as they now call it, treating each other with perfect frankness and seant regard to courtesy on either side—par ents who deplore the growing radeness -will be delighted to hear that an Eng lish educator of reputation proposes to introduce into the education of young women and girls the principles of chiv-alry toward the male sex. He maintains that this has been entirely neglected in the teaching of girls, and while boys have been taught to pay due deference to women, the girls have not been taught that they owed any consideration to any one—either of their own or the opposite sex. The result has been selfish and inconsiderate women, who accept all chiv-alrons attentions from men as a right, without a thought that they owe even the courtesy of a thank you in return.

It is a good time to begin such teach ing when women are entering upon a wider sphere of work with a greater recognition of rights the same as these of men. It would be a loss rather than a gain of these new rights should be as samed in such a way as to knock down the old ideas of chivalry among men and the best way to maintain these will be to teach the new woman the same chivalry toward men as used to be taught boys toward women. — Philadelphia Ledger.

Miss Laura Clay, daughter of Cussins M. Clay, the famous Kentuckian, who has for several years been a leading exponent of woman's right to the fran-chise, had the satisfaction of presiding over a mass meeting of women at Lex-ington recently called to nominate four women candidates for the board of edu cation. The women of Kentucky will vote for the first time in the selection of school officers this year. Miss Clay has her famous father's blood and spirit.
